ANNOUNCES RESIDENTIAL PROGRAMME ON

“Role of ICT in driving Government Performance”

From May 21-25, 2018 at Manali

INTRODUCTION

In view of the recent political innovations globally, owing to the changes taking place in technological, socio-political and economic fronts, it is important to gain a steady grasp of how new information technology trends could raise the quality of government performance in ways that would satisfy citizen demands. Outstanding government performance reflects the processes for timely making and implementing decisions. It assures that transparency and accountability as well as views and voices of all (in society/organization) are heard in decision-making. It is also responsive to the present and future needs of society.

Information & Communication Technology (ICT) being one of the major drivers for the rapid changes taking place globally and has brought a tremendous paradigm shift in all the fields. New modes of policy consultation are experimented to improve citizen engagement in the policy deliberation process. Information technology trends such as social media, mobile technology and applications are utilized to allow various stakeholders to present their perceptions on public issues.

The programme, therefore, seeks to address the role of ICT in promoting government performance. It presents various efforts to integrate ICT in implementation of policies and administrative reforms needed for government performance. The drivers and challenges to such initiatives will also be examined.
