About Webinar Program :-

Prior to beginning of any new project, it is mandatory to get an environmental assessment done. This is required to put forward the possible environmental impacts that the project may cause, the extent of damages expected and steps that will be taken to counter the damages. The new draft Environment Impact Assessment (EIA) 2020 proposed by the Union government has left the environmental activists with a bad taste. It is being accused of weakening the environmental legislations and silence affected communities. It is extremely important to be aware about the ongoing issues in the sector. Every policy formulation or amendment in existing once is liable to affect our lives directly and indirectly. In troubled times like the present, overlooking the impact of over exploitation of natural resources in name of economic development can be catastrophic and against the commitment of sustainable development.
