NATIONAL PRODUCTIVITY COUNCIL
ANNOUNCES ONLINE CERTIFICATE COURSE ON “Good Governance and RTI”

PROGRAM OBJECTIVE:

Effective Governance refers to structures and processes that are designed to ensure accountability, transparency, responsiveness, rule of law, stability, equity and inclusiveness, empowerment, and broad-based participation. During the course of governance, citizens have the right to access such information which has public interest and delivering rightful information to stakeholders is sign of GOOD GOVERNANCE.

Therefore, to promote transparency and also to contain corruption, access to information is imperative. Right to public Information enhances people participation in democratic process thereby empowers the citizen and makes the governance a Citizen Centric Government. In a fundamental sense, right to information is one of the basic necessities of good governance which has led to introduction of RTI Act 2005. The Act have revolutionized the governance in terms making the public authorities accountable in terms of delivery of service to citizens.

The training program on “Good Governance & RTI” intends to provide insight about various provisions of RTI Act while addressing issues for making citizen centric governance. The training would also identify opportunities for improvement in the process, systems and ensure quality in public service delivery. It's also intended to establish accountability and readiness in the process of delivering service to citizens as part of requirement under RTI Act-2005. The programme also aims to infuse awareness about access to information which is a toll to empower citizens in a democracy as it urges the people of the nation to scrutinize the actions and policies of the government.
